quakers Have Speed, While Crimson Has Heth Speed and Weight - Other Contests for To-day - Columbia to Tackle a Fast, Light Aggregation in

The Harvard-Pennsylvania game to-day is the most important scheduled, though there are others that are likely to be more evenly contested. The Philadelphia game is recknowd as a foriorn hope for Pennsylvania, the Quakers having been below the standard all season and Harvard having developed a team that, it is believed, ranks with Harvard's best. There is no gainsaying the vard's best. There is no gainsaying the fighting qualities of the Pennsylvania players. Light hough they are and insufficiently versed in the groundwork of the game though they may be, they are sandy and their friends say they will do their best to the very end. no matter how much outplayed. Pennsylto triumph over speed alone unless the speed alone is sufficiently greater than the other side's speed to offset the advantage of weight, and certainly on the form shown by the two teams there is no indication that Pennsylvania is any more active than Harvard. It is expected that both teams will attempt to shoot fast formations around the ends and Harvard looks to have the better of it in this respect as her interference is better than Pennsyl-

At tackles Harvard also has the better of it though perhaps not so much so as at the ends. Cutts and Blagden are strong. scrappy tackles and from the Crimson view-point are expected to get through Piekarski and Donaldson and do their part in spoiling plays. There is less disparity in the centre trio, Harvard's being the more experienced.
except in the case of Teas, who will face Lee. of Harvard; but while Pennsylvania's backs are speedy and fairly good the Pennsylvania centre will have a heavier and harder group of backs to hold than will the Harvard centre. Individually Kernan, Ristine and Graydon, the best three backs Harvard can put on the field, are stronger than Rey-nolds, Dale and Davidson of Pennsylvania. Howard, the Pennsylvania quarter back, is Howard, the Pennsylvania quarter back, is a lively player, pretty good at running back punts, but inclined to fumble, a fault which is bothering all teams to an unusual extent this year, not excepting Harvard. Marshall, the Harvard quarter back, has not been out as long this season as Howard but is said to be a comer.

When one team is so much stronger than the other, as the experts have figured it out Harvard will be to-day, the kielding game does not make so much difference. Harvard has a good distance punter in Kernan, but if the Crimson can make ground steadily at rushing there will not be much need for kicking. If the game goes as it is expected to go Penn-sylvania will have to kick away from her own goal a good deal and in Reynolds she has a man who can attend to this duty well enough for all practical purposes. Fumbles may play a part in the result. These misplays, while showing a lack of skill, add to plays, while showing a lack of skill, add to the uncertainty of the game and present one contingency by which the weaker team always has a chance of scoring on the stronger. It has been predicted that Pennsylvania will play better football against Harvard than she did against Columbia. She is sare to play harder through sheer desperation. Moreover, she has had a week in which to get better. That new play with which Woedruff is to astonish the football world may be in working order this afternoon. If ne works it to the extent of overthrowing Harvard it surely will astonish the football world world.

from letters received since the Philadelphia game, to find fault with the management in scheduling games with athletic associations. It is only fair to the management to say that no one disliked the necessity of games of this kind more than it did, but when it was found last February that games usually counted on to help the treasury could not be had this season, Cornell and Pennsylvania both cancelling their dates, and it being impossible at that late day to arrange with other college teams of prominence, there was no other course open and these athletic association dates were made under the force of circurations. Steps have already been taken to avoid this next season.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN-Sir; Just to fit the occasion and to give expression to fond hopes which we fully expect will be fulfilled, we have modified the fittle song printed in your last Sunday's issue to the following:

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Both the Harvard and Pennsylvania teams were on Franklin Fleid this afternoon, but not at the same time. The Harvard men arrived in the city on the morning train and at about 5 o'clock took busses for the field. They were there about fifteen minutes and then departed. Pennsylvania squads were out earlier in the afternoon, running through their plays and signals. That was all Pennsylvania did to-day, the men resting for the big game. This evening a mass meeting of students was held in the triangle of the dormitories, where speeches were made. Then the students formed a torchlight procession and marched down to the hotely where the Harvard team is stopping, and cheered the visitors. Both Pennsylvania and Harvard received a great send-off. Pennsylvania has not made much of a reputation for herself this year in the games with the smaller colleges, but it remains to be seen what she will be able to do against Harvard. Pennsylvania's team is light, the lightest team that has represented Pennsylvania for a number of years. There is not a great doal of betting, as there is little Pennsylvania money floating around, and what there is, is held at prohibitive odds to win. There is more betting on Pennsylvania scoring, and that is about even money. No Pennsylvania supporter expects to see the Red and Blue come off victorious, but there are many who think that the team has a fighting chance to win. They argue that Pennsylvania men and appear a much stronger class of mon. Coach Lewis, the former centre of the Crimson team, when questioned as to the team and arrangements, said:

"I am glad to be able to state that the men are in particularly good physical condition and fit to make the fight of their lives. The journey was pleasantly passed and not one of the boys appeared to weary of the trip. We have all the 'Varsity and subs here; the scrub team will not arrive until to-morrow, when it will be in the undergraduate party. Do we expect to win? We expe

Rutherford High School football team and the team representing Heidenfeldt Institute played off a tie game at Unionport yesterday afternoon. The first game, which was played on Oct. 10, was an interesting battle, and the game yesterday was still more stubbornly fought. In the first half hard tactics were used by both teams to score but to no avail, and time was called with honors even. In the second half Kutherford High School scored a touchdown, from which a goal was kicked, thus wianing the game by the score of 6 to 0.

terday afternoon. Two favorites, both edds-on, were successful, but in the other races the talent went down pretty hard. In a word the layers are making up their losses in the closing days of the local racing season. There was considerable rough riding during the afternoon, the climax being reached in the fourth race, for selling platers, at a mile and seventy yards. With Lamp O'Lee scratched, four went to the post. Bowen opened favorite at 6 to 5 but receded a point to 13 to 10 while Lucky Star was being played down from twos to 9 to 5. Handicapper was also re-duced from tens to eights, while Criterion went up from threes to fives, a curious proceeding. The start was good and at the first turn Bowen showed the way, though he first turn Bowen showed the way, though he was but a head in front of Criterion and Handicapper. Suddenly as if shot Bowen stopped and became a trailer. He had been cut down by Handicapper, as it turned out later, and had stumbled so badly that Wonderly was compelled to pull him up. Then Criterion, full of running, went on and won galloping by eight lengths, Lucky Star being eight lengths in front of Handicapper, who was twelve lengths better than the favorite. Wonderly hurried before the stewards and lodged a protest of foul against Creamer, Wonderly hurried before the stewards and lodged a protest of foul against Creamer, who rode Handicapper. The stewards called Burns, who had the mount on Lucky Star, into the stand, and after weighing the evidence they decided to disqualify Handicapper and awarded third money to Bowen. Chicago, Nov. 8.—The crowd at Lakeside to-day was confined entirely to regulars and although three favorites and a second choice won, the bettors profited little as they seem to place their money with little confidence. Louisville, Nov. 8.—Ed Turner, who was riding for Will Jackson of Nashville, fell with his mount, Tristram, in the fourth race to day, and his skull was crushed and back broken. It was on the back stretch that the horse went down, pitching the boy over his shoulders. The boy is unconscious in Jackson's stable and is not expected to live. Charlie Thompson, who won against the bit in the second race, was played all over the country as a good thing. He opened at 2½ to 1 and was quickly rubbed to 6 to 5. Summaries:

GEN. MILES WANTS MACHINES FOR ARMY USE.

He Gives an Order to Bring Samples to Washington-Crowd at the Garden Continues -Some New Things Deevloped -Fournier's Road Record a Myth.

Even those members of the Automobile xpressed themselves yesterday as being surprised at the way the attendance at the sec-ond annual show in the Garden has continued The crowd in the afternoons has been almost as big as it has at night and last night there were as many or more in the aisles as on Asked what he thought of the show Henri Fournier, the French chauffeur, said yesterday: "It is a fine show. It is very Frenchy.

It is as good as any they have in Europe. except maybe in decorations. I was here to the show of last year but that was not much. This is the first great show for America. And they have some plendid machines here." The scope of service for the motor vehicle is aptly illustrated by the circumstance that yesterday, after wealthy followers of fash on had been buying vehicles for pleasure during the last four days, Gen. Nelson A. Miles requested one of the makers at the show to send one of his touring machines to Washington, as he wantd to introduce a number of machines into the army for scouting service.

Some of the most interesting scenes in connection with the show are to be found outside the Garden. On Twenty-seventh street there is all day long a line of autos along the curbstone on each side of the street. Most of them belong to exhibitors within the Garden, who have them stationed there the Garden, who have them stationed there to take prospective customers for a ride, but among them are machines of several makers who are not exhibitors, but who constitute what may be termed a "curb market." Some odd happenings occur in this curbstone market. One story that seems hard to believe, but that is vouched for by a reputable selesment is to the effect.

for by a reputable salesman, is to the effect that he had left his machine standing alone on Fifth avenue while he and his companion went in for a drink When he came out he put in the crank with which the motor is started, then paused and turned to look for
